Edward Leskauskas is currently the Head of US Audit, Risk Assessment & Field Monitoring, North American Ethics & Business Integrity, at Sanofi. He has responsibility for leading the US healthcare compliance risk assessment and resulting risk mitigation, the compliance audit function, and monitoring of field commercial and medical activities. Prior to Sanofi, Edward was the Vice President of Ethics and Compliance at Ipsen Biopharmaceuticals North America. There he enhanced the corporate and commercial compliance functions in addition to overseeing related compliance concerns in pricing, research and development, transparency reporting, and quality, in multiple locations. Edward also spent 10 years at Bristol-Myers Squibb where he was a leader in both corporate and commercial compliance, including the management of the BMS Corporate Integrity Agreement. Before BMS, he was a management consultant providing strategic guidance, project and change management, and process reengineering expertise to pharmaceutical, retail, and media services companies. Edward holds an MBA from the Mason School of Business at the College of William and Mary and a BA from Drew University.
